

DISCLAIMER

Updated: February 27, 2021

Thank you for choosing At Home Urgent Care. Please read the following disclaimers carefully. By using our site and/or creating an account, you agree that you have read, understood, and are in agreement with the terms indicated on this disclaimer as of the date of usage and/or account creation.

TELEHEALTH DISCLAIMER

Call 911 immediately or go to the nearest emergency room if you believe you are experiencing a medical emergency.

You are agreeing to have a telemedicine consultation. Telemedicine is the practice of medicine using electronic communications technologies. Telemedicine consultation services are provided by At Home Urgent Care. When you use these telemedicine consultation services, you will enter into a provider-patient relationship and be treated by a provider who is licensed in your state. The providers, in exercising their professional judgment, reserve the right to deny care for any reason, including instances where provision of care would be medically or ethically inappropriate.

Getting treatment through a telemedicine consultation offers certain expected benefits and has certain potential risks. Expected benefits include easier and quicker access to medical care, and the ability to access care from many locations. For example, you can initiate a remote examination from your home rather than having to wait to schedule one. Potential risks include the remote physician not being able to fully resolve your issue over the phone, and lack of physician access to your full medical records, which may, in rare instances, result in allergic reactions or other adverse drug interactions. You have other options for care. You can obtain care in a traditional in-person care setting, such as seeing your Primary Care Physician or visiting an urgent care center.

By agreeing to have a telemedicine consultation, you acknowledge that you have reviewed these benefits, risks, and alternatives, and you agree that you consent to a telemedicine consultation. You have the right to withdraw your consent at any time by ending this telemedicine consultation session. By agreeing to have a telemedicine consultation, you acknowledge you have received and read the Notice of Privacy Practices for At Home Urgent Care and you have received and read the Notice of Privacy Practices for At Home Urgent Care. You further authorize At Home Urgent Care to release your confidential information to any and all consulting providers. You have read and understand At Home Urgent Care Terms & Conditions and Privacy Policy. You agree to receive emails and push notifications (if enabled) about your consultation, including the provider's name and consultation time.
